

The Daily Gazetteer.

TUESDAY, JULY 22. 1735.

41. 20.

Yesterday arrived a Mail from France.

Rome, July 9.

N Express from Civita Vecchia has brought Advice, that the Chevalier d'Orleans, Grand Prior of France, who was arrived there with a Squadron of 20 Ships, including Men of War, Gallies, Fire-Ships, and Bylanders, is sail'd for Palermo, to take Don Carlos on board, and carry him to Naples; after which he is to join some Spanish Ships at Pescara, in order to go upon a secret Expedition, which, 'tis thought, will be the Attack of some Place in Istria.

Venice, July 13. On the 11th at Night a great Fire broke out here, in the Shop of a Druggist, which burnt with such Fury, that 15 Shops, and 10 Houses were presently consumed, notwithstanding the great Diligence used to extinguish the Flames.

Warsaw, July 13. The Count de Munich has received Advice, that the Peasants called Kurpicz have determined at last to treat with King Augustus for their Submission, and to swear Allegiance to him; and that they beg his Majesty to excuse them from all Taxes, by reason of the Barrenness of their Country, which lies in the Palatinate of Mazovia, upon the Frontiers of Lithuania and Prussia. By reason of its great Forests 'tis as inaccessible as the Country of the Goralles, who dwell upon that Chain of Mountains that runs along behind Cracow. The Inhabitants, who subsist only by hunting and grazing, pay Contributions to their Superiors in Game, but have often rebelled against them, and been the Occasion of a great deal of Mischief, especially when the Republick has been disturbed.

The Manifesto which the Count de Munich published to exhort them to that Submission, which they now seem inclined to make, is dated at Warsaw the 20th of June, and couched in these Terms.

'Forasmuch as you, who are obliged to earn your Bread with the Sweat of your Brows, have been stirred up and seduced, by vain, false, and impracticable Promises made to you by Persons, to whom you ought to give no Manner of Credit, and who labour incessantly to pervert you more and more: I recommend my Advice and Exhortation to you by these Presents, that all of you who live in the Forests of Lomza, Prawnitz, and Ostrozenca, to forbear to assemble yourselves for the future, and that you lay down your Arms; that you destroy all the Works made in the Forests without the Consent of your Superiors; and that you no longer refuse to take before them, the Oath of Allegiance to his Majesty King Augustus III, without fearing the least Invasion or Oppression from the Troops of the Empress my Sovereign, which are in these Parts. As to those turbulent Heads, who are Enemies to the King, and have taken Shelter in your Country, you are required to banish them without Delay; and for that End to give Notice of them to your Superiors.

'As a Reward for such your Loyalty, that Monarch, whom the Almighty Power of God has placed alone on the Throne of Poland, and does establish him on it every Day more and more, and who is a just, mild, and religious Prince, will certainly confirm and maintain the Rights and Privileges granted to you by his most Serene Predecessors.

'Moreover, her Imperial Majesty, my Sovereign, will forget all the Injuries and Damages you have done to her Subjects, and will not permit any Revenge to be taken of you upon that Account, unless you farther persist in your malicious Obstinacy, which tends to your own Ruin, and to the Prejudice of the common Tranquillity of the Republick. In this Case I shall be obliged to make use of all Methods to call you to Account, and to exterminate you by Fire and Sword, together with your Children, Dwellings, and Estates, as Disturbers of the publick Peace of the Kingdom, in order to compleat your Ruin, and to perpetuate the Remembrance of your Obstinacy. This is what I earnestly warn you of by these Presents, and allow you 10 Days from the Date hereof for your Repentance.'

Hanover, July 19. His Britannick Majesty having a Design to carry the Walk from Herenhausen to the Glacis of this Town, has ordered an Account to be laid before his Chamber of Finances, what it will cost him to purchase the Gardens of some People that will be necessary to be laid into that Walk. The Counselor Meyer has presented his Majesty with a fourth Tome of his Historical Treatise of the Peace of Westphalia. This Work, which his Majesty wagratically pleased to favour with his Reception, and of which he has also read some of the most material Passages, explains the fundamental Laws of the Empire in a very intelligible Manner. The three former Tomes were dedicated, the first to the King, the second to the Queen, and the third to the Prince of Wales.

Vienna, July 9. Mr. Robinson, the British Minister, dispatched a Courier two Days ago, with the Emperor's Answer to the new Proposal for a Cessation of Arms, which, 'tis said, imports in Substance, That his Majesty consents to, and accepts the said Suspension, freely and simply, but relatively to the Plan of Pacification.

Letters of the 29th ult. from Mantua say, that the Posts which the Troops of the Allies have taken round that Place, are at such a Distance, that People go in and out with great Ease, and that the vast Quantity of Rain which has lately fallen, has not only felled the Marthes as to hinder the nearer Approaches of the Enemy, but has so purg'd the Air, that the Garison now enjoys perfect Health, and is in a Condition to make a vigorous Defence in case of an Attack. They have all manner of Provisions in great Abundance, except Fewel, which 'tis feared they will want.

Frankfort, July 21. The Colonel de la Croix has been put under an Arrest at Heilbron, because, as 'tis said, that some Days after he was taken, it was discover'd, that he had transported several Combustibles over the Rhine, with a Design, as 'tis imagined, to set Fire to the Villages of the Rhingau.

Guelder, July 19. Yesterday about half an Hour after 5 in the Morning we had a violent Storm here, mixt with Thunder and Lightning, which fell upon a Magazine of Powder, consisting of 133 Barrels, over the Gate which leads to Venlo, so that the Gate and all the Buildings near it were blown into the Air; a Convent and all the Houses of one entire Street are also ruined, and all the rest of the Houses, Cloysters and Churches, have suffered so much, that no Bombardment could be so terrible. We do not yet know the exact Number of Persons that have lost their Lives by this sad Accident; but 'tis certain that a Lieutenant and all the Soldiers that were upon Guard at the Gate were blown up, and fourteen of those miserable Corpses are just now taken out from the Ruins. And 'tis very much feared, that a Phaeton with six Horses, which set out from hence at the same time with four Ladies of Amsterdam, besides other Passengers, has met with the same unhappy Fate.

Paris, July 27. They write from Leghorn, that they have advice from Naples, that the King of the two Sicilies was crown'd the third Instant at Palermo with all possible Solemnity, and with great Demonstrations of the People's Affection to his Majesty, who, by reason of the great Heats that rage at this Time of the Year in Sicily, was to set out on the 6th or the 7th on his Return for Naples, which City has already erected several Triumphal Arches, and is making other great Preparations for his Majesty's Reception; and the Nobility have also provided several Barques and other small Vessels, which they have caused to be painted and furnished with rich Tapestry, in order to go and meet the King. Three hundred Thousand Piastrres more are upon the Road from Leghorn to Parma, under a Guard of Thirty Dragoons, for the Pay of the Spanish Troops in Lombardy. The great Guns and Mortars that were made use of at the Sieges of Monte Philippi and Porto-Hercole, are upon the Road to the Mantuan, and the Artillery employ'd at the Siege of Syracuse, is put on board there to be transported to St. Peter de Arena near Genoa, from whence it is to be sent by the Po into the Mantuan. The Baron de Wuttgenau, Governor of Mantua, has sent Word to the Imperial Court that he is in a Condition to hold out a Blockade of 9 Months, but that he cannot defend it so long in case of a Siege. Several Thousand Bullets, a great Quantity of Gun-powder, and of Tools for breaking up the Ground, are transported from Placentia by the Po for Reverso, in order for the Siege of Mirandola.

Our Actions continue to rise, and are now up at 1500, it being reported that a Suspension of Arms is on the Point of taking Place.

Rome, July 2. Last Saturday the Chevalier de St. George returned hither with the two Princes his Sons from the Country, and on Tuesday they had an Audience of the Pope.

Hamburg, July 18. They write from Mecklenburg, that tho' the Duke Charles Leopold sends repeated Warnings to the Nobility and the States, to obey him as their lawful Prince, and not to submit to Orders that are contrary to the Laws of the Country, yet they still conform to the Imperial Decrees.

Letters from Stockholm say, that the Governors and other Generals having sent the King Lifts of the Musters from all the Provinces of the Kingdom, with Advice that all the Regiments were compleat; it was computed that the Land Forces, including the King's Guards, Militia, &c. amounted to 46,000 Men, and all farther Levies are prohibited. King Stanislaus often applies himself by Letters from Koningsberg, and by the Intercession of the Court of France both with the King and with the Senate, that they would espouse his Cause; but as yet they don't seem to give much Attention to it.

L O N D O N.

Letters from Dumbarton and Glasgow mention the great Rejoicings in both those Places, upon the News that the Hon. Colonel John Campbell, who is Member of Parliament for the Shire of Dumbarton, and Provost of the Borough of that Name for this Year, has had the Honour to kiss the Queen's Hand, on his being appointed Lieutenant Colonel to Colonel Hamilton's Regiment of Foot.

Dublin, July 12. One Busby, a Silk Throwster, having obtained a Warrant for apprehending one Tho. Brannan, a Weaver, and knowing him to be a desperate Fellow, went with one Holliday, a Constable, who keeps an Alehouse in Francis-street, armed with Guns, on Tuesday last in the Afternoon, to serve the same, and took him at an Alehouse in Mill-street: Brannan made Resistance, and would not go before a Magistrate, but went to attack Busby, and as he was running on him, Busby shot him into the Belly, of which he died on Wednesday Morning. Busby and Holliday were immediately committed to Newgate. 'Tis said that Brannan used to have criminal Conversation with Busby's Wife.

On Wednesday Night some Villains having snatch'd a Handkerchief off a young Woman's Neck in Phoenix-street, she went immediately and told her Brother, one Edward Mullan, (who keeps a Meal-shop in the said Street) who went after them to demand the Handkerchief, when one of them struck him on the Temple with a Brick, and killed him. They all made their Escape.

Wednesday last arrived his Majesty's Yacht from Parkgate, having on board the Right Hon. the Lord Viscount Limerick, and his Lordship's Family; the Right Hon. Sir Thomas Pendergast, and several other Persons of Distinction. And Yesterday it sailed for the same Place with Sir Robert Echlin and his Lady, and the Rt. Hon. Edward Webster, Esq; &c. Two Sailors, who were drowned some time ago, were taken up in the River on Wednesday, close lock'd in each others Arms.

Yesterday one Moor, a Carman, on Lazars-Hill, after he had water'd his Horse, rode Home, and hang'd himself in the Stable.

This Morning a Man was found drowned on Aston's Key, but by what Accident we do not yet learn.

The following Experiments were lately made with the Carr furnished with Friction Wheels. A Pole being raised thirty Feet high, and a Pully, with near 300 Weight fixed to it, an even Ascent, or inclining Plain, was made use of for the Trial. The Weight at the End of the Pully drew a common Carr with 610 Pound Weight on it, up the Ascent; it drew the Friction Carr with 1118 Pound up the same Ascent. Then Planks being laid on one Side of the Plain, so that one Wheel of the Carr ran 10 Inches higher than the other, the Effect was, that the Weight at the Pully drew the common Carr with no more than 404 Pound Weight, but it drew the Friction Carr with 1104 Pound Weight on this uneven Ascent. From thence it appears, that a Horse will draw up an even Ascent, near twice as much on a Friction Carr, as on the common Carr, and thrice as much up an uneven Ascent.

Yesterday the last Detachment of General Bisset's Regiment of Foot came to Town from Country Quarters.

Last Sunday died Roland Buface, Esq; Counsellor at Law, after a short Indisposition, at his House in Chancery Lane. He was a Gentleman of an exceeding good Character, and is very much lamented.
